I've always been a somewhat uncoordinated person who tried nearly every sport imaginable when I was young, but I never seemed to find success nor enjoyment with mainstream athletics. It wasn't until I found shotgun sports in middle school that I discovered my athletic passion, and finally, achievement.

With the guidance of great coaches, teammates, and family, I've realized that athletics isn't always defined by astroturf, cheering stadiums, and bright lights. Rather, I can find it in the vast open spaces around me with just a shotgun and a flying clay. The SCTP program has granted me some irreplaceable athletic opportunities that have helped shape me into who I am today, both on and off the field. I couldn't be more grateful for these opportunities.”

“ For the past three years, I have dedicated my life to the sport of trap shooting as a SCTP/SSSF/ATA/AIM member. As the leader of my squads for the past three years, I have been able to daily serve and influence my teammates to work hard and reach their goals. I have learned to interact with teammates from different cultures, backgrounds, religions, and viewpoints and unite them to a common goal – to become better shooters. I am often able to lift their spirits and encourage them to persevere through particularly difficult times during practice. I live my life by the simple principle, learned from my parents, of treating others as better than myself. By modeling this behavior, I have been able to elevate the level of sportsmanship in myself and every member of my team.

I will always be grateful to SCTP for creating a platform for youth to come together and learn responsible firearm handling. I feel honored to attend a high school that allows us to learn the sport of trapshooting. I know that my time on the trapshooting team has helped shape me into the young man I am today. I have learned to be patient, consistent and pay attention to the smallest details. I will take those values with me as I move on to my college and business career. I am so excited that I was able to influence my younger brother to compete with me and I look forward to the many years of competition that he has in front of him. I am so thankful for having had the opportunity to shoot trap competitively and I am thankful for all that SCTP does to continue to make that possible. I take with me a solid foundation in trap shooting that I will enjoy throughout the rest of my life. Thank you SCTP!”

This shooting program has taught me to look at the big picture but always take things one step at a time. This is similar to standing on the line and setting the expectation to shoot a 25 straight, but take it one shot at a time to reach that goal. This program has given me new friendships of all ages and has taught me to step out of my comfort zone and talk to the more seasoned shooters for tips and feedback. It has taught me that I won't always reach my goal every time but as long as I have a little fun, work hard, practice and learn as I go I will eventually reach those goals in shooting and life.”

“ SCTP has taught me about good sportsmanship both on and off the field, respecting and encouraging my teammates and others, self-respect, persistence, strong work ethic, leadership, responsibility, and respect for firearm safety. It has also allowed me to travel to two National competitions to represent my home state and meet other shooters from around the country.

I have formed many friendships throughout this process, including many with several coaches. I will forever be grateful to my first coach, the late Stu Wright, who initially got me started in this sport when I was in the 5th grade, as well as many other Pinckneyville Shooting Sports coaches who have helped me throughout my shooting career. SCTP has helped me strive academically by setting a high standard and working towards achieving it. I enjoy working with the young shooters and watching them grow in the sport. The camaraderie makes this sport a competitive but welcoming environment. Because of SCTP, I have developed better social skills and an understanding of responsibility. “ I started shooting clays my first year of high school (Spring of 2021) and joined SCTP at that time. This was my first exposure to shotgun. I had previously shot USPSA 9mm Pistol, competed in pageants and danced/twirled baton. With COVID all of my pageant activities, dance and baton competitions were cancelled, and I needed to get out and do something. I found trap and I love it!

As a young person, SCTP trap introduced me to so many new people. Since joining the SCTP trap foundation, I am now a member of 2 teams, conservation clubs, and I volunteer on a regular basis. I love being outside – despite the cold winter months in Wisconsin! I thoroughly enjoy going to matches and talking to other young adults and sharing my videos and social media with them. In addition, I feel like I am now an advocate for girls in shooting sports. I have encouraged many girls to join the trap team at school! Last year we had 2 girls on the varsity team, this year we have 5! Finally, I do believe that my concentration has improved being a part of these teams. I work very hard to remain calm and focused. Without my team, this would not be possible!”

“The Scholastic Clay Target Program has helped me develop in many ways. It has shown me how to become a better shooter, meet new people, and become a more outgoing person. When I first joined the Scholastic Clay Target Program, I was not very good at shooting, but then I met new people who could provide tips on becoming a better shooter. I have met many coaches, who have given me different tips on how to exceed more in Trap Shooting along with mentor shooters on both my team and other teams that have given me advice along the way. I have also gotten the chance to work with level 2 and 3 shooting instructors. Finally, the Scholastic Clay Target Program has made me a more outgoing person. I’m not a very talkative person, but both my team and the Scholastic Clay Target Program encourage me to get more involved. On my team I have joined our youth board. On the board I have been elected secretary two years in a row. This position requires me to talk and be a leader on my team. Planning and organizing team bonding events requires me to open up and get out of my quiet shell. Getting to know all of these different people has made me want to talk to more people and be a more outgoing person. The Scholastic Clay Target Program has overall made me a better person. Learning these new skills, whether they are Trap Shooting skills or life skills, will always stick with me and develop me into an even better person.”

Being able to compete with other young athletes like myself, gives me motivation to strive harder to do my best. Each events presents different challenges where sometimes it gets frustrating but knowing that there will be more events/ shoot, those challenges that I’ve had has equipped me to do better. It prepared me to be ready for the next ones. Also, seeing parents, kids and other people volunteer to support the program gives me hope that we are a community. “ SASP has been a major part of my life for the past 8 years. I started competing in this program when I was about 10 years old. Through 4-H I was introduced and invited to the scholastic shooting team and all of the benefits that come with it. I have been shooting with the same 4 man team since I first started. We have become very close, grown very much, and learned so much about this sport and life together. Through this program they and I have had the joy of competing together in many different competitions, some being very high ranking. These consisted of shooting against some of the nations best shooters in my disciplines . Among these competitions I was able to make many good connections with fellow shooters, and have even had the privilege of getting to know HIPOINT Firearms® CEO who used some of my pictures and videos for their website. I have also had the pleasure of interacting with other very important members of Smith & Wesson, Taurus, and CZ companies and shooting teams, which made it very apparent that I would love to continue my shooting career with Hocking College. Through many of the hardships, challenges, and problems that have arisen I have continued my shooting career.

Whether for an escape, a way to better myself, or a combination of the two, I have loved having this as an option for my life. I loved this so much that while choosing the college I would attend to get my education in natural resources law enforcement I have looked and spoken with schools with shooting teams. I had opportunities to go to a couple universities like MSU and OSU but they did not seem to fit exactly what I was looking for in my chosen major and university. So I decided on Hocking college because I really liked their facility and what they offered in my chosen major. But they did not offer a shooting team. So I have been in contact with Dan Kelly(Dean of Natural Resource Law Enforcement), Carry Campbell(Athletic Director), and Craig Moore(Assistant Athletic Director) from Hocking College about starting up a team since they already have a facility for it and people trained for firearm handling. They feel it would be a good fit for the facility and students. They have been helpful in further information on starting and running a shooting team at their college. So hopefully from our correspondence we can get some students that show some interest involved and get a team going. It would be a really awesome goal to be able to compete at the SASP College Nationals next year. The archery program at Hocking was started 5 years ago by a student just like me who had a passion for the sport and found others interested then Hocking got behind them and supported it. Their team was a past winner at the archery nationals. In conclusion, I hope to have the opportunity to compete in the 2023 college season. I also hope to compete with some of the athletes I've come to know and have had on my team that will be shooting at the college level as well."

Naturally your friends are there to support and encourage you but the outpouring of support from other teams, coaches, competitors was so humbling and amazing. “ Through my years trap shooting, I have met some amazing people who have shaped me into the person I am today. I have grown and learned, not just as an individual, but as a team member and leader, setting a positive example and passing on knowledge I've gained throughout my years of shooting. A personal achievement that I am proud of is my role on the Santa Lucia Sportsmen's Association Youth Trap Team which has allowed me to grow as an individual competitor, contribute to my team and team scores, as well as mentor upcoming youth shooters.

I've learned that trap is just as much of a mental game as a physical game. Being able to stay focused, positive, and respectful, not just to others but yourself, contributes to success. During my time with my trap team, I have competed and had great success not just in state competitions but national competitions as well, winning multiple state titles and placing nationally.

Personal achievement means more to me than awards and titles. What I am most proud of is my role on the Santa Lucia Sportsmen's Association Youth Trap Team and my contribution to the whole team. I believe that my influence has helped others push past what they thought their limits were and learn to love this sport as much as I do. I also believe these experiences helped me grow and push past my own limits that I set on myself.

As a graduating high school senior, I am nervous and excited to continue Shotgun Sports at Lindenwood University in Fall 2022."

“ I started shooting trap when I was just 10 years old. At the time, it was a major accomplishment for me just to shoulder a shotgun, as I had had an experience when I was younger that made me afraid to shoot one. From that moment on, I have not stopped. Shooting has become a passion for me and I went from shooting trap singles as a boy, to trying every discipline offered to me and becoming one of the top shooters on my team as a young man. Trying new things, being dedicated to the sport and learning the discipline it takes to succeed.

Over the last seven years, I have been taught several lessons by this sport, some of them the hard way. I have learned to be driven but also humble, as the shooting sports have a very humbling effect. I have learned to be confident in my own abilities and those of my teammates. I have learned to accept failures as well as successes.

When I was a beginner, I looked up to the older kids. I went to them for advice, I watched how they carried themselves and how they treated others. As a junior in high school, it is hard to believe, but now the young kids are looking to me for those same things, and again, I am humbled. I am learning a new lesson now; how to be a role model. How to carry myself as a leader of my team. And how to lift up the younger kids when they are struggling, as I did at their age.

Where most sports teach you how to play a game, I feel like the shooting sports have taught me how to be a better person. I would not be the young man I am now without it, and that is a lesson I will take with me when I graduate and move on to college and beyond.”

When shooting in a competition and/or preparing for one with your teammates, it takes hard focus and work, and I have carried those traits off the shooting field and into life.*

Furthermore, SCTP has taught me patience and teamwork.

In terms of patience, when me and my teammates are in a competition, we know that everything is not won in just one day and we have to keep a great mindset through every single day in that tournament. Patience, poise and the ability to work with a team is a huge factor to succeeding in a multi-day event!

In summary, If there was no SCTP, there would be no telling where I would be at right now. The many things I have learned from the SCTP cannot be learned anywhere else and that's why it's so great!”

“It has been fun to participate on the high school shooting team since I was a freshman. My participation in the team has helped me to grow as both a leader and a shooter. One of the things that I like most about shooting sports is that all athletes are allowed to participate and no one has to sit the bench. Most importantly, the more effort that you put into your shooting skills, the more you get out of it. Shooting has helped me to develop friendships and comradery among my team members as well as members of other teams across the region and state. While my favorite shooting sport is Skeet, I also enjoy Sporting Clays and Trap.”

As I became more involved in SASP I have noticed my confidence grow in so many ways from being more comfortable talking to adults to helping my younger teammates on the range. Without SASP I would not have become part of Junior Shooters Magazine team and have the opportunity to share my stories about shooting. Competition shooting and participating in the SASP program has affected me in more ways than just one. I have grown as a person, and have enjoyed every minute of being a part of this program. SASP has allowed me to make multiple friendships that feel more like a family. I have learned how to safely use a fire-arm. It has really shown how much the people around me care, and support everything that I do, and have done. Being a part of this experience and community means so much to me, and I appreciate every second of doing this.

With all of the competitions, my family would go camping. We have bought a camper, because of this sport. And in doing so, it has allowed us to spend more time with family and the rest of the team, rather than just seeing each other at practice or the actual matches.

Some of us are around the same age, therefore we get along great. Most of us even go to the same school, and see each other every single day. On the weekends for example, we make plans to hang out, and strengthen that bond that we have with one another.

We also have done some things within the community. We have been included in the Wounded Warriors match, and the First Responders match. The money that is used to participate in the match, which goes to the charity of the first ranked team's choosing.

In conclusion, SASP has allowed me multiple great things. I have been able to make friends that feel like family. I have been able to experience a great team and program, and being included. Lastly, I've been able to help with the community, and take part in helping with charities and other people in my community.”

The scholastic clay target program helped me in ways from building my well-being to my relations with others in SCTP. At first, I was timid toward current members because I was not familiar with them as I began. However, my time in the SCTP was worth it as I made connections with the coaches and teammates in the organization. Not only that, I met SCTP members from other organizations that I am still friends with today. Outside of the SCTP, the discipline that my coaches taught me helped me in school and other extracurriculars. I succeeded in most academics as I became a role model to younger students in my school and developed excellent study habits to be the best in my class. The SCTP has also helped in my school's Kiwanis Club as I tend to be a person to get along with other members and the board. This moment led to me following the board's steps as I ran for a position on the board, getting into Secretary and Class Director. Being a part of the Central Florida Rifle and Pistol Club SASP Team has made me more confident with myself and with my shooting skills. The coaches have continued to teach me to respect guns and to make sure my surroundings are safe. The Scholastic Clay Program offers an educational opportunity for youth to learn and respect gun safety and management in a positive environment. The program has allowed me to grow in integrity and leadership to mentor others and build teamwork. I have learned that people can be leaders no matter the official title or role in a group by influencing others by mentoring, demonstrating accountability, and supporting team goals and initiatives by getting involved with the activity and encouraging others to do the same. It has offered me a sport to learn self-discipline, independence, and grow in self-esteem while developing life-long friendships. Mental Strength and focus are a critical tools in shooting as it helps you analyze and plan to shoot a target. “

SCTP has provided an outlet for me to compete at a high level consistently for many years.

One can only achieve so much shooting every once in a while at their local gun range, and SCTP has allowed me to expand both as a competitor and a person.

When I first began shooting, I would go with my dad roughly once or twice a year, and it certainly was not to train, but to just shoot at something and hope to hit it. Throughout these rare trips, my dad noticed that I had a natural talent for the sport. While nothing came of it at that moment, years later in my junior year of high school, my dad and I created a trap team for my high school to shoot and motivate myself to improve my skills and encourage others to try the sport and develop their own skills. Shooting with this team provided me two very simple, yet essential traits that are not only necessary to shoot well, but are also pertinent in every day life that I will carry with me for the rest of my life. The first trait that I acquired was the ability to remain calm under pressure. Life is full of pressure, stress, and tense situations. Many people may fold under those conditions, but there are many who begin to thrive. Shooting through SCTP has converted me from a person who began to fold under pressure to someone who can tackle the situation at hand when pressure is applied. The very first time I shot a 25/25, the parents commented afterwards how they could see me shuffling at my station, twitching nervously with an inability to sit still. The pressure was immense, and only got worse when it came to the next round. There were countless times in the beginning of my shooting career that I would miss a target towards the end of the round, eventually earning the title “Mr. 24” as a result. Nearly 6 years later, I am consistently able to hit my targets, and in my prime, earned the upgraded title “Mr. 99” among my friends. Shooting has taught me how to feel pressure and turn it into a motivator, to use it to push myself rather than crumble under it. This trait is invaluable, and will continue to serve me in my future career in medicine.

The second trait that I acquired is learning to have a short memory, or in other words, be able to learn from a mistake in the moment that it happens, then push it out of my mind to regroup and take the next shot with a clear head. Again, towards the beginning of my shooting career, there were countless times where after my first miss, many more would follow. This was attributed to the fact that those missed shots lived in my head while I tried to shoot the next one, and it distracted me and tore down my confidence in my abilities while I was on the line, leading me to second guess many of my movements. SCTP, however, by providing me with the opportunities to shoot at a high level, I have learned to read my mistakes and absorb that information and carry that with me, but to throw out the negative emotions and thoughts that go along with it. Again, this trait is more important than words can describe, because this trait is also extremely pertinent in my future profession. One bad call, one bad order, or one bad patient can tear a health professional down, but it is important to learn from it then move on without it weighing one down, because the next patient needs the doctor to be on the top of their game, not second guessing themselves.

SCTP has provided me an invaluable skillset that will continue to be a large part of my future, and I hope to also help teach others how to obtain and maintain that same skillset.”

At practice I enjoy stepping up and helping with all the shooters. The SCTP has also helped me to work hard in school to keep my grades up so that I can continue to compete on the team. I have overcome the obstacles of elbow surgery two years ago and currently I am trying to learn how to get my gun in the right spot after breaking my collar bone. I plan to continue shooting with the SCTP for as many years as I can. The SCTP is a great organization and I really enjoy being part of it!”

The Scholastic Clay Target Program has deeply helped me develop as a young person. This sport has taught me more about myself than I could have ever imagined. SCTP has introduced me to some of my best friends on and off the range. These people have been there to cheer me on on my best days and bring me up on my worst, and I am incredibly thankful for them. This sport has made me stronger, mentally and physically. It has also allowed me to accomplish things that I never knew I was capable of. The range, along with the people on my team, has become my safe place. Thanks to SCTP, I have figured out who I am and whom I want to become. This sport has become a part of my identity and I cannot remember what life was like without shooting. I am forever grateful for what SCTP has allowed me to experience.”

I am incredibly thankful to be a part of the Scholastic Clay Target Program. If it wasn't for my coaches and teammates on my Carolina Clays team, I would most certainly not be who I am today. I have tried many sports: soccer, softball, horseback riding, and basketball, just to name a few. While I still play basketball for my high school, none of these sports really gave me a true sense of belonging or satisfaction. The clay shooting community, on the other hand, immediately welcomed me with open arms; and the people in it would do anything they could to help me out. I remember the very first shoot I went to with my Carolina Clays team, I looked around at my teammates and coaches and thought: "This is exactly where I'm meant to be."

My teammates and I are constantly encouraging each other to be the best we possibly can be, on and off the trap field. That's a special bond you can rarely find in any sport, but is one of the fundamentals of SCTP teams. In fact, it is because of the Scholastic Clay Target Program that I have so many outstanding role models to look up to. I feel that seeing these great examples has helped me become a better competitor and person overall. All together, SCTP has allowed me to grow into the person I am today. I have come a long ways from being the shy and insecure kid I was before joining Carolina Clays, and I can't wait to see how I will continue to grow from all of the wonderful experiences I gain through this fantastic program."

The Scholastic Action Shooting program has continued to strengthen my leadership skills and contributed to the young man I am becoming. I have been a part of this program since 8th grade and everything I have learned with my team and the SASP has spilled over into other parts of my life. For example going into my Senior year of Football I was picked by my coaches & fellow players to be a part of the Leadership Counsel. It is a big honor to be selected for the Leadership Counsel, the coaches look for those players that can lead, be trusted, have integrity and show mental toughness. All skills that I have developed while being a part of SASP. Being one of the youngest in my year at school I have found that being part of a program like SASP has helped me grow and mature.”

The SCTP program has been great for me. I joined our team in 7th grade and was a complete novice. Over the last several years, I have made so many friends in the sport through the team and continue to improve and grow as a shooter. With biweekly practices and monthly competitions, clay shooting has become my sport! I have learned to be more responsible and goal oriented through the SCTP program. I switched to a new private school this year with a more rigorous curriculum and higher expectations. Being on our SCTP team has taught me how to rise to these new challenges and how to achieve new goals. I am developing into a more confident shooter and person with each passing year on the team.”

“The Scholastic Clay Target Program has helped me grow immensely in just two short years. I hadn't had experience shooting before joining my school team and didn't have any expectations for the sport beyond experience with other team sports. My team and the entire SCTP family were constructive and have quickly made shooting my favorite sport. Throughout my two years shooting, I have learned many skills regarding coaching/ mentoring, promoting and networking, and furthering my communication skills with people of all ages. This past summer, I began coaching young, new shooters in the DFW area. I continued this with new shooters joining my team. I had private lessons available and would help out during team practices. For over a year now, I have had worsening autoimmune issues, which led to two back procedures and many attempted treatments. I wasn't able to shoot throughout this time, and the team coaches would have me solely take over practices. On average, the shooters I have coached had an increase of 30-40 clays over the season. When I go to college, my coach has said I can obtain my NSCA coaching license through his shooting school! My time coaching these shooters has taught me so much about communication, instructing, and overall sharing my passion for the sport with others. I have learned how to communicate efficiently with elementary and middle school kids so they can learn as best as they can, all with encouragement. My shooters have followed in my footsteps with the equipment to use, tournaments they go to, and even marketing themselves as a shooter. While I instruct my students on how to improve as a shooter, I also cement the importance of helpful sportsmanship, respect, and kindness as a person. Beyond hearing feedback about their improvement within this sport, I have heard much about these shooters' growth as a person. These kids have been incredible to work with, and I know they will be on the top leaderboards soon; but more importantly, SCTP is incredibly lucky to have these shooters in the program. Another attribute I have learned in my time with SCTP is how to efficiently market and network. A little past my first anniversary as a shooter, I created an Instagram account initially for meeting colleges with shooting teams. Soon, it began to grow into more than just a college-hunting page. This is ultimately why I am now a sponsored shooter, as I built relationships with several different companies. Appearance has never been so important to me as when I first received recognition on my account. I never was one to throw hulls or any exasperated, angry reaction; I always began to remember to smile and emit joy on and off the stand. This skill and furthering my communication skills online with professionals and businesses overall have aged me significantly. As a born and raised southerner, I have always had a "yes ma'am/sir, no ma'am/sir" attitude. Still, I quickly had to advance my email, phone, and all-around technology skills with adults to gain respect back as a businesswoman. I promote, create, and model products for these companies on my personal account, their business accounts and websites, and other platforms/sites including magazines. Therefore, my skills have to be up to those of a professional, and within the SCTP environment and the skills I have received from being a part of it, I can say that I am up to speed. I also am pursuing business as a minor when I go to college! This leads me to my final point; how I will use these skills in the future. My career goal is to be a Pediatric Oncologist in my own practice. I have been accepted into Jacksonville University's Direct Access Nursing Program (where I was 1 of 5 chosen to begin the program as a freshman), which will be my major. After receiving my Bachelor's Degree, I intend to continue at Jacksonville University to pursue the dual Master's program to receive an MSN and MBA. Afterward, I will be going to medical school. The communication skills mentioned above will be crucial for both my schooling, career aspirations, and connections, and for being comforting and a friend to my future patients. Therefore, I am forever grateful for the skills, experiences, and memories I have received from the Scholastic Clay Target Program!"

Just by being on my own team, I have met kids from other schools and have met really nice coaches who live in my surrounding area. The act of shooting competitively has helped me with focus, concentration and discipline. Like the one coach says, “If you are not tired and sweating by the end of practice, you aren’t doing it right.” I have also learned that when I mess up at one station, to let it go when I move onto the next station. This is a lesson that can be applied to life. Also, I didn’t realize that being a good shooter means to pay attention to good nutrition as well. “What SCTP has done for me this year, is that it has taught me how to never give up and how to control my emotions. Because at the beginning of my shooting season this year I wasn’t doing as well. Last year I was doing well and accomplished many personal goals and personal best. So at the beginning of this year, I thought I was going to continue on how I did last year. That was not the case, I took a big dip in my shooting scores. I was getting really discouraged and was going through a ton of emotions and frustrations. I was at the point where I wasn’t having fun anymore. Then we figured out a few things that we needed to fix, but I was so discouraged at what I thought my season should be, that I was still focused on the wrong things. Finally, after a long hard few months my dad asked me “If you aren’t having fun anymore, why are we doing this?” After a few conversations I started focusing on having fun again instead of my scores and now my scores are moving up. In the end you should always try to remember why you started shooting in the first place. “Because it’s fun!”

“The SCTP has helped me grow as a young adult by teaching me life lessons like leadership and sacrifice. When shooting with a team, leadership is one of the most important things someone needs. I've learned this from my responsibility of squad leader. My squad mates know I'm on post one in trap and up first in skeet and sporting, always willing to take a risk for the team. Another thing I have learned from shooting with the SCTP is sacrifice. To be a competitive shooter one needs to be willing to put a lot of time and effort into pounding targets. Sometimes you might sacrifice your time on the range to be a leader. Instead of going out and shooting, you can help coach other kids, because you might see things from a different perspective than the adult coaches.

My hard work, sacrifice and dedication helped me win second place with a 199 in Varsity individual singles at the SCTP Iowa State Trap Championships and also my varsity squad won first place at the SCTP National Team Championships in singles. “ Throughout my journey in the SCTP, I’ve learned to better myself in different disciplines or prepare myself mentally for competitions. But what I believe to be some of my most important takeaways from being in the SCTP and being a part of a team, is how to deal with loss, and what it’s like being a part of such a supportive group. In early 2022, our former Head Coach, Steve Quam, lost his battle with cancer. I know what it’s like to lose someone in life, but for the first time, I had a support system that was better than no other. My team was not only a place to grieve but a place to celebrate his life. “The Scholastic Clay Target Program and Scholastic Action Shooting Program has help me because it helped me become more social and helped me make new friends. It also has teached me to work hard, and if I want something I cannot just sit there and wait for it. Or wait because it is not the right time, if I want to shoot good I am going to practice and put up my gun. If I want to get a good grade on this test I am going to need to study and work hard on my homework. That is how the SCTP and the SASP has help me develop as a young person, and made me who I am today.”

“The SCTP/SASP has helped me develop into a young person in the following ways: First, When I started in SASP I was scared of the pistol. My coaches taught me how to safely handle the pistol and I’m no longer scared to operate my pistol. Secondly, when I started competing in the SCTP/SASP my scores were on the low end. I worked very hard and have improved my scores. “Don’t give up because beginning is the hardest”, Natsu Dragneel. In fact, this season I shot my first 25 straight. I’ve always wanted to apply the All-Scholastic Team and because of my hard work my time in Iron Rifle has allowed me to do so. Grades are also very important and the SCTP/SASP program helps to keep me motivated to do well in school because if I don’t, I can’t compete. I want to do well not only for myself, but for my teammates. My team is very important to me and has helped me make friends.”

The SCTP has provided me with many opportunities I would not have had otherwise and has allowed me to do things I would not normally have been able to do. It has allowed me to meet new people from all over the country, which is probably one of the best things about the SCTP because we all have at least one thing in common and that is the love of clay target shooting. Becoming a better and more competitive shooter in SCTP has boosted my confidence and self reliance. After proving that I am capable of shooting at a higher level and keeping up with other good shooters, I feel that I can do anything I work hard for and put my mind to. As a varsity shooter on my SCTP team, I have had to carry the role of being a leader. This has helped me take responsibility for not only myself, but also my teammates. Being a leader for my team has a huge impact on every shooter and coach I come in contact with, and I take pride in fulfilling that role. “SCTP has helped me grow as a person as well as a shooter in many ways. One thing that sticks out to me is the importance of remaining humble at all times.

Over the last 6 years of shooting I have noticed SCTP has also taught and encouraged many of the same values and lessons my parents have taught me.

Sportsmanship, honesty, courage and calmness under pressure are things that come to mind.

When I first started shooting I noticed all the kids would give each other a fist bump after each turn and a little encouragement. I never saw this when I played baseball. Even though we are competitive and want to beat each other, we never tear each other down. Responsibility is another lesson that has cemented with me as I have grown up with SCTP. I learned early about the importance of gun safety and how to care for my gun and to respect the rules of the range.

I have learned the importance of ethics along the way, too. I have had people speak up for me at times and I have learned it is OK to speak up for someone else when it is the right thing to do. I was taught very young to always be honest and I have seen this same thing be stressed in the SCTP.

Overall, I feel the SCTP has been a huge positive influence on my upbringing. I consider it a privilege to be a member and I hope to be able to teach my kids the same way one day.”

Also, by always making sure the sport is conducted in a fair and honorable way. “Being a part of the Lions Scholastic Action Shooting Team has helped me build upon my character and work ethic. My character has developed through patience, teamwork, safety precautions, and the ability to learn a new skill and become better at it, with the help of listening closely to coaches’ constructive criticism. My patience developed by realizing that in order to become faster, you need to start slow and make sure each shot is accurate. “Go slow to go fast” was the most important factor in helping me continue to improve. Even though I took this approach last year, it was still a very important mantra to include this year. I learned that if you are patient and work hard, your end goal will come with time. My teamwork skills also developed as I had to make new connections with others, most of the opposite gender. My work ethic has evolved in the way of learning how to take constructive criticism and apply it to my shooting. Also, in mentoring and leading our newest members, becoming a team captain has given me new opportunities to learn how to become a better athlete and leader. In each string I shoot, I strive to improve, even if it is by milliseconds. The end goal of becoming faster gives me the motivation to keep going, and the confidence I need to become a faster, better, safer shooter.”

I have made many great friends both on and off of my team from participating in events such as state and nationals. It has also opened up many future opportunities involving colleges. I have been approached by a few college teams who show interest in my shooting abilities and I have even been invited to shoot with a college team on campus. I got to meet many kind people there including the coach, team members, and other students who were invited. As well as socialization, shooting for SCTP has also taught me a lot about time management and responsibility. I have had to juggle my time between practicing, competing, schooling, and relaxing. It has taught me how to make sure each aspect of my life gets just the right amount of attention so I can excel in them all as best as possible. Overall, shooting for the Lorain County Youth Trap team has taught me some great life skills. By not giving up on bad days and pushing through hard spots, I have learned perseverance. By analyzing every shot and going back to the basics, I have learned attention to detail. And through the team, I have found many friends and shared many memories. All of these virtues and connections have carried over into my everyday life where I apply these skills to my school work, my job, and my relationships, thus making me a better young person. “ I joined SASP because of my love of hunting and firearms that has now turned into a passion for speed shooting that I hope to carry through life. It has taught me patience to slow down and follow a process and not try to re-invent a sport, a very slow and humbling process for me. Along the way I have learned many life lessons I will carry with me forever like being on time, making sure my equipment is cleaned and ready, and that I’m in the right mindset and acting in a safe manner before I begin. Shooter ready is a process in my mind that is so much more to me now than just being prepared to shoot a round at a station. Its making sure I’m prepared for whatever my day brings me and working towards a competitive edge in all facets of my life. Being a part of SASP helped me find this in myself and the great coaches in Dripping Springs continue to make sure I continue to work on the things that will make me a better shooter and a better person as I move forward.”

I joined SASP when I was 12 years old. Since then, I've grown and learned to be more responsible in many ways.

This year, I was chosen as my team's co-captain and was able to learn how to use my leadership skills that I learned in student council and apply those to serve my team. I've learned to lead by example, a leader should be willing to do everything he expects his team to do. I always try to get to practice early and to help set everything up and make sure I am the last to leave when packing things up. I believe that I've grown in many ways thanks to my amazing coaches, who always show me that there is always room for improvement as well as growth.

I was able to learn how to focus at all times even in extreme weather conditions and to have a good mindset. I'm more than willing to do what is necessary to get something done and not only efficiently, but safely. I am so very thankful for the opportunities that I have had and the journey it has taken me on and am excited to see where the journey takes me. I'm ecstatic at the fact that I get the opportunity to join the All Scholastic Team.”

“The Scholastic Action Shooting Program has helped me develop valuable communication skills along with the ability to defend myself. My team has reinforced a strong work ethic and is incredibly encouraging. I have met so many amazing people and my confidence in interacting with new people has greatly increased. My focus in and outside of practice has gotten much better from when I began shooting, which makes it easier to complete schoolwork and helps when interacting with others. Because of this amazing program, I have been able to make lasting bonds with many people and create meaningful memories I can look back on for years to come. I have felt very accepted in the sport, even though not many girls do it, which has changed in recent years. Because I shoot, I feel very empowered and I feel more confident as a person. If I can do all of these amazing things in this sport, then I can do amazing things in other places of my life as well. I love to teach people new things and to help them when trying new things, and today during practice I was able to apply that skill because a group of Girl Scouts came in to learn what we do and I was able to help coach them. Before I demonstrated, none of them had wanted to try it, but after I demonstrated, all of them wanted to try it. I think that them seeing a girl that was able to do those things had really inspired them and helped to convince them that they could do it too. I was able to help them become better shooters and I was able to share my love of shooting with a new group of people, which are both things that I think are very important. Without this program, I wouldn't have been able to do any of those things. Because of this program I am able to travel to new places to compete, and meet new people from all over the country that can provide a new perspective and can help me learn new things. Last year at nationals, we were able to talk to other teams from all over the country and we learned a lot about how shooting the targets in different orders affects your speed. They taught us the best way to shoot those targets in order to be faster shooters. This program has so many kind and helpful people involved. Coaches from other teams will help you, even if you're not from their team because of the shared love of shooting and their passion to share that experience with others. My first year at nationals, I shot a few days before the rest of my team because I could not be there all week. My team had not arrived yet and because it was my first year, my parents and I had no idea where to go or how to get there or who to talk to. After we had located and talked to Rick, I was assigned to shoot in a bay with another team. The team was from Indiana, but the coach of that team was an enormous help and had even helped me to adjust my stance to shoot better, even though I was the competition. I honestly don't know what I would do without this program and it has greatly impacted my life. I am so glad I joined because I have learned so many new things and had so many experiences that I would not be able to have otherwise.”

“SASP has helped me grow as a person in many ways. It has allowed me to set goals for myself, which I have started doing more often and then I was able to achieve those goals. I have become a more hands on deck kind of person at the range. I am always now the first to get anything done I do not waste time and I try to ensure that the team is shooting their best and I am shooting my best. As a person it has made me humbler whenever I win. I have learned to be humble about winning and still congratulate others on the positions or the ways that they shot. It has made me a more aware and quick-thinking person in shooting. I am always aware of my surroundings and that has transferred over into my normal everyday life. I now notice every little thing in life. In summary shooting in the SASP organization has helped in so many areas in my life, I am more honest, humbler, and more social with my team.”

“As a shooter of 3 years, I can say with full confidence that the SCTP foundation has shown me what it means to be a respectful teammate. The sport of shooting is one that constantly is changing, and it teaches me how to learn and respond to others as I meet them. As I talk and meet with past, current, or future teammates, they teach me the respect and responsibility the sport has, and even some traditions that go into making the sport as fun as it is. Without respect in shooting, it wouldn't be as fun or eye catching as it currently is. With the sport being exciting and open-armed as it is, I have found myself meeting and inviting new people to our shooting club. When I first started, I was invited by a former teammate who was able to teach me the basics of shooting as at that time I had never shot a caliber higher than .177! After he introduced me to the team and started me on the trap line, I came out of my little hermit shell and truly saw all of what the sport has to offer. Competition shooting of course consists of scores and events, but the sport of shooting is truly about self-control, respect and constantly learning. All these things together are something everyone has, but few choose to keep improving all three. I feel as though the SCTP has given me a chance to improve on the factors said above, as well as given me chances to meet new people who many I have befriended.”

“The Scholastic Clay Target Program has helped me develop as a young person in various ways. Firstly, I have learned a lot about leadership. As a squad leader, it is my job to make sure my teammates on my line are prepared and ready to shoot. However, it is more than that. I actively try to help my less experienced teammates by giving pointers and tips about specific things like how to manage the field’s backdrop and weather conditions. I also help them improve upon their general shooting, like if they need to keep their cheek tighter on the gun or if they are waiting too long to pull the trigger. Secondly, I have become much more patient. I have learned that things come with time. I have struggled with doubles for as long as I can remember, and it would always frustrate me when the birds did not break when I pulled the trigger. However, I have recently discovered that I can steadily improve by practicing good habits every time I step up to the line. And with time, I have started to see an improvement in my scores. Lastly, I have got to experience things I have never dreamed of. I have been to more states and cities than I thought I ever would. I have met so many interesting people along the way, and I have heard so many stories I will remember for quite some time. I have improved and developed so much over the past two years, and it all started with my town’s SCTP team..”

“ During the pandemic, I started Trapshooting in 2019 with my sister’s old Winchester SXP, just wanting to “try it” out. Since I had so much more free time than normal, I started to learn more and more about the sport and discovered how much I enjoyed it. Tons of practice and countless canceled meets all led to the Iowa State Shoot in August of 2020. I still vividly remember walking off of the line at state in 2020, and thinking to myself, I did it. Not “I did it” in terms of score - in fact, I didn’t even know my score at that moment, but I knew I had made it through 200 rounds. And I had learned a lot along the way. Sometimes shooting at meets can be nerve-racking. Placement can come down to a one-bird difference, and it’s always been hard for me to calm down on the line. Trapshooting has taught me different ways to deal with anxiety. Some days, I just won’t shoot my absolute best. By learning to deal with disappointment and not performing, I can turn bad days into opportunities to rebound. In this way, my confidence has grown. I’ve spent hours shooting in wind, rain and snow and learning the value of perseverance. I can take these lessons to other areas of my life, such as academics and extracurriculars.

Over my three years in shooting sports, I've made some close friends in my squad. Trap is not just shooting guns: but it's long meets under the shade of a tree, barbecues with teammates, or playing cards with your squad. Everyone in my group brings something to the table, and for me, it's team spirit. I play for my high school's soccer team, where everyone is supportive and the team is always full of energy. I like to hype my squad up the same way the soccer team does. I have taken a leadership role and grown as an individual along the way. Just because trapshooting isn't yet recognized by the Iowa High School Athletic Association doesn't mean that we can't have the same dynamic as other sports.

For me, trapshooting isn't just something to do on the side: it's a passion. Even though balancing it with school, student council, soccer and other extracurriculars can be challenging, I can always make room for trap. It brings good memories and pride in myself. And finally, I get to do it with my friends.”

“Greetings, my name is Connor Knapp and I am a 17-year-old competitive shooter from Whitefish Bay, Wisconsin. I was first introduced to SASP when Daniel Boone, our home range, started supporting the sport and I thought I'd give it a try. Little did I know how much this sport would impact my daily life, decisions, and future. SASP doesn't just help you get better at shooting, it also helps you become a more mature and responsible human. SASP has taught me how to share my knowledge with others and demonstrate good sportsmanship. For example, when someone is struggling with a stage, I help the best I can even if they are not my teammates. This translates to my academic and home life as well. I help my sister with school work and I treat other classmates with respect. In other competitive activities I used to get upset when my teammates would do better than me but because of SASP I now want my teammates to do better than me and I want to see others succeed. This also transfers over to when I play golf, football, and other pickup games with my friends. In addition, SASP has taught me how to be a strong leader. Being a leader in SASP is crucial, you have to help your peers with stages and step up when others don't. I utilize these behaviors in school as well as my daily life when teachers, classmates, or my family needs my help. Finally SASP has taught me the importance of rules, as there are a specific set of rules you must follow whether you're shooting or watching. Following these rules has helped me understand why other rules in life are so important no matter how small they are; even if you dislike them, they all have a meaning and purpose.”

“ I believe the Scholastic Clay Target Program has helped me develop greatly as a young person. A primary example of how the program has been instrumental in my upbringing is the things it has given me such as a life long love for this great hobby of shooting sports, the fun at weekly competition shoots and practice. One thing that I didn't expect to have with the shooting team is the feeling of family it has given me like no other activity or group, excluding my family related by blood. Secondly, this sport has showed me the meaning of hard work and how if I put my mind to something, my efforts can take me as far as I want them to. In other words, the time you put in on the practice range is equal to the success you will see in competition. And lastly, one thing I have taken away is the irreplaceable memories I've made with the BHS shooting team. Some of those best memories are learning to shoot for the first time with my younger brother Logan, and participating in the team bonding activities outside of shooting events, like swimming in the motel pool after our shooting is over with, all the way to meeting all of the new and interesting people from across the country while at the SCTP National Competition. These are a few of the reasons I am grateful to have the opportunity to shoot on the BHS Shooting Team that couldn't be possible without the SCTP.”

As part of a team that shares my common interests, I have now joined a team of people I can consider friends and teammates. We push ourselves to improve our shooting abilities, succeed in competitions with my peers, and have the opportunity to be a part of something bigger than myself. Ever since I was ten years old I was going to the range with my father almost every chance I got. I have always enjoyed shooting as a hobby and have loved going to the range to shoot for fun. Even though I have only joined Scholastic Action Shooting Program for a few months I have enjoyed being able to compete in this program against others who share the same hobby and interests. I have learned what it means to be part of team which is to always support one another, helping each other in any way possible so that we may succeed together, whether it be loading others' magazines or helping another teammate improve along with yourself in each discipline. Personally I learned how to persevere from failure, when I lose in a competition or simply have an off day when shooting, I have learned to be optimistic, remember the goal in this sport for me is to have fun, and try to do better and learn from my mistakes. Finding success in something can be difficult, but shooting has shown me somewhere to find it, and it teaches leadership and teamwork skills in the process. Whether running a hundred straight in skeet, beating a varsity squad, or placing at Nationals, shooting gives me something to work for and reap the success with my teammates.”

“ I have been an athlete on the Pistol Prodigies SASP shooting team for a total of 5 seasons, and been a part of the SSSF all scholastic team for 3 seasons. When I first joined the Pistol Prodigies, I had no idea how beneficial this program would be to my development, not only as an athlete, but as a young person in general. This sport is completely unique because there is so much more to the SSSF than shooting alone. Over the past 5 seasons the SASP has taught me a multitude of life skills that have completely changed me as a person. Supporting your teammates is a huge part of the Pistol Prodigies, and the entire SASP in general. Through this support I learned how to work well in a team. I also learned that having good sportsmanship is crucial to success in any aspect of a person’s life. The Pistol Prodigies also has a very large number of new and young shooters. Being a mentor to people of all ages in shooting sports has helped me develop clear communication and great leadership skills. In fact, I’ve enjoyed mentoring younger and older athletes so much, I have decided to take a SASP coaches class this fall. One of the most important things the SASP has taught me over the years is how to give a solid, respectable handshake. While this may sound simple, giving a solid handshake is a great way to display respect, a respect that the SASP has helped me develop.”

I have also learned that if I settle my mind before I take the line by leaving anything non trap related behind the 27 yard line when walking to my post I am able to be a better athlete and better team mate. “

My name is Jacob Stolz and I first started trap shooting when I was in 6th grade. The Scholastic Clay Target Program has helped me develop to get out of my comfort zone. In 6th grade, I was shy and wasn't the person who would be running for a class officer or helping in the community. Now that I am a sophomore in High School, I am in Student Council and have run for class officers. I was nominated in the 2020-21 school year by my classmates at Hudson High School to be in a program called Peer Helpers. The focus of Peer Helpers is to help students and the community. At school, I'm also in the Raider Choir, Raider Elite and the Hudson High School football team. And this year, I was nominated by teachers to be in the National Honor society which is where you spend time giving back to the community and complete service hours. This all became possible because of the Scholastic Clay Target Program.

For starters, trap shooting has kept me persistent and pacing myself. Also, it has helped me to work hard and continue to practice. This has resulted in a better work ethic and being more persistent. Trap shooting has helped me better understand that if you find something that you like doing and keep a positive mindset you can accomplish anything. When I first started shooting, if I shot in the teens, it was amazing and was an excellent round. Now, I strive to shoot in the mid-twenties or better for one round. The coaches for our team have encouraged me even when my score wasn't what I wanted. They have taught me to "flush" a missed bird and move on to the next one. That helps me keep a positive attitude when I'm shooting. Because of this, it has led me to being able to shoot 50 straight this trap season and almost 75 straight at a regional tournament. It is the positive environment of the Scholastic Clay Target Program that has helped me become a better person and help others. The people that you meet and interact with for shooting are some of my closest friends. Also, it allows you to meet with and make friendships that you normally wouldn't get from school or athletics. Thanks to the Scholastic Clay Target Program and my coaches for helping me to continue to develop into a better young person.”

But when I joined the Midlothian Clay Target Team, I was shown that teammates are not there to bring me down. I was shown that my teammates could actually greatly help me improve my shooting ability. “SASP/SCTP has helped in four ways in the last 3 years I have been a part of SSSF. Discipline, Leadership, Communication, and Concentration. Discipline while shooting helps me to take this sport more seriously, and understand the how to make a youth shooting sport safer. Another way SASP/SCTP has helped me is improving my leadership. Leadership has helped me on and off the field, by being the person my team can count on when they need help. It has also allowed me to help coaches, as well as other shooters become better. I will use the leadership skills I have gained in SASP/SCTP for the rest of my life.® My leadership skills learned in SASP/SCTP have helped me is to become a better team player. I encourage my teammates to be the best they can be. The other way I am a better person and shooter is that I have become a better communicator. I have learned to talk to my coaches and be able to assist the coaches as well as my teammates This may be in setting up stages, or cleaning up. I am learning the things that I can do to help out. A round can go from great to awful if you let one mistake get in your head. Just like life, a match should be taken one step at a time and if you make a mistake you should take a step back and learn from it to fix the next time. This program has also helped me grow also as leader. As I have become an experienced member of my team, I often have to not only look at what I am doing but also what my team is doing. Shooting as part of the SCTP program has helped me develop strong problem solving skills and the ability to make quick decisions, skills that I will certainly need as I pursue a career as a doctor of veterinary medicine. Not only have I been able to develop my shooting sports skills, but I have also had the opportunity to make lifelong friends and positive memories as an effect of my participation. SCTP shooting sports have changed my life for the better, and I am so grateful for the opportunities that the program has presented to me. I took a major interest in animals of all kinds when I was very young. I clearly remember hunting with my dad before I was able to carry a gun and watching all the different types of animals walk past our stand. One especially snowy year, we watched a fox hunt for a mouse in the field that our stand overlooked. I not only developed an interest in wildlife, but I also really enjoy caring for our 4-H animals. Through my local 4-H club, I have been able to raise swine and rabbits, as well as bring them to the fair to show. Because of these early experiences and more, I have been accepted into the Iowa State University animal science program with the ultimate goal of attending vet school. While these interests may not seem related at first, shooting sports have definitely helped me pursue my goal. Hunting with my dad was my first real exposure to firearms, and I had a lot of fun learning about how they worked. Once I entered middle school, my friend encouraged me to join our high school's club shooting team, and I quickly learned about the different disciplines. I found that I enjoyed sporting clays and trap the most.”

Shooting with the SCTP has helped me grow a lot as a person over the last four years. It helped me gain friends from other places that I wouldn't have connections to otherwise. Mostly because I attend the East Troy Wisconsin High School. They do not have a shooting team and the local sportsman's club has approached the school district twice with being turned away both times. The Burlington High School shooting team welcomed me into their "family", and I really have made a lot of great friends. Now in my senior year I find helping younger shooters has given me leadership skills and an appreciation for the coaches, staff, parents, and the SCTP program. I plan on attending Waukesha County Technical College and continuing to shoot with Burlington at a collegiate level. I hope to take any lessons I learned over the years of shooting and apply them in my future.”

The Scholastic Clay Target Program has helped me develop as a young person by teaching me how to be mentally prepared for events. Showing up and shooting is not how I do my best, I have to mentally prepare to get into the right frame of mind to go out and shoot the best that I can. The Scholastic Clay Target Program has also helped me make new friends at shoots. Some of my best buddies I have met through this program. These are the type of friends that will be lifelong, they will support me in anything that I am involved.”

“There are many things that SASP has helped me with when it comes to developing into a young man. The first and foremost thing it has helped with is taking instruction. Though I always have been a listener, SASP has very much humbled me into realizing that I don't know all about shooting, and I still have many things to learn, especially from coaches. Along with being a good listener, I had always struggled when it came to interacting with other people, even when I had to. However, shooting through SASP has helped me connect with others who share interests like mine and connect with others, some of who are my best friends. Similar to other hobbies, like band, SASP has helped me realize just how important practice is. Whether it is our biweekly practice or practice at home, in order to perform at my best, I have learned that practice is key. Along with the practice, time management has become a necessity. Between practicing, preparing, and actually shooting, managing time has helped insure I do not exhaust myself. Practice and time management are two qualities that I believe will be lifelong traits that have developed from my experiences in the Scholastic Action Shooting Program.”

“Shooting under an SCTP team has helped me develop outstanding sportsmanship habits and has helped me focus on my studies. I have had my ups and downs in shooting and with this, I have learned not to lose myself after a bad round. I learned to keep going and try to understand what I am doing wrong. I have found this immensely useful throughout life as I found this to be a great way to approach problems in life. I have also learned good goal-setting habits shooting in the SCTP. Each year at the state shoot I approach it saying I want to shoot better than last year. And this has worked so far as each year I work on myself to be more consistent and improve my own ability to shoot. Shooting has helped me focus on my studies as I have always taken academics before my own hobbies but my joy for shooting has led me to complete assignments on time and even early in order to get out to the range more. I have also taken time at the range as a step away from schoolwork to help focus my mind on something else and refresh my brain. This has been applicable in college as I was given longer projects and stepping away for an afternoon to relax has put me into a clear mindset afterward to keep going. Overall shooting in the SCTP has benefited me greatly as a person and as a student.”

“The Scholastic Action Shooting Program has been a very impactful program for me to have had the privilege of taking part in. Through this program, I’ve grown as a leader, a teammate, an athlete, and a friend. As a leader, I’ve learned the importance of making sure that teammates feel that we, as a team, are working together and collaborating to achieve our goals. As a teammate, I’ve learned that one of the most valuable things you can do for your team is to be a comforting and friendly presence. As an athlete, SASP has shown me that if you hope to achieve a goal you must be consistent, determined, and disciplined in its pursuit. And finally, I’ve learned that as a friend, often it’s less important how you help someone as to why you helped them.”

“ This is my fourth year on the Dripping Springs shooting team, all of which have been invaluable to my personal growth. In addition to learning the efficient and safe operation of firearms, our coaches have instilled discipline and precision in myself and my fellow teammates. The multitude of competitions, practices, and tournaments have increased my level of control and eye-hand coordination. Despite the many rigors during my junior year of high school, I have remained determined to maintain academic success, complete my Eagle Scout rank in Boy Scouts, and improve my shooting skills. This summer, I plan to accompany our team at the SASP national competition and complete my Eagle Scout Service Project. My teachers and coaches have modeled a positive image of perseverance that has inspired me to continue pursuing my goals.”

“The Scholastic Clay Target Program has immensely helped me as a person by giving me a platform to exercise my enthusiasm for shooting sports. This is done by not only competing but also being able to share my gifts with others. The act of exercising the things you are interested in is what inches you closer to your purpose and brings you fulfillment. In my case, one of my biggest interests is shooting sports. Being a member of the Scholastic Clay Target Program has allowed me to fulfill many of my desires and still proudly serve the wishes of others. Just as any progression in any program goes, the more experienced athletes have the necessary tools to help developing athletes. Being an experienced athlete myself, I can gladly assist other beginners with the most empowering knowledge I know to see them prosper. Whether they use my assistance to their advantage or not, seeing the athletes grow, improve, and receive a sense of gratification in their improvement brings me great joy and also fulfills me. Although the Scholastic Clay Target Program isn't a place I plan of taking my future career-wise, it constantly serves as a very good reminder that in order to truly excel, you must do what you love. As it is for most young athletes, the program is a very large stepping stone in their lives and is bound to give them a great foundation of knowledge. This includes the importance of teamwork, communication, hard work, discipline, and following your heart. It has certainly been an honor to be a part of this program and encourage any current athlete to keep pursuing their ambitions within this area.”

“The Scholastic Clay Target program has drastically changed my life, in more ways than one. Over the three years I have been in SCTP, I have grown in my ability to shoot, but also in my ability to persevere, which is arguably the more important trait of the two. Perseverance is defined as the persistent effort in achieving a goal, and this idea is incredibly important in shooting sports. I haven't been with this program for long, but I have experienced my share of rough patches, where my scores, technique, or even my mental focus was challenging my ability to reach my goals. It was, and still is, difficult to persist when I lost sight of what I wanted with this sport, and if I hadn't had supportive coaches/team encouraging me to keep going, I most likely would have quit. If I hadn't realized that I wanted to achieve my fullest potential with this sport, I would have quit. It is difficult, to persist on the hard days, but I'm still learning. This sport has allowed me to realize that with enough perseverance, really anything can be achieved, and this revelation can be applied to so many other things aside from shooting sports!”
